yourself and Miss Nattall, I am sincerely yours, Agnes Wildes.

The Judge having summoned up the jury retired, and after some deliberation returned.

On the following day Mr. Russell, Q.C., applied to Baron Fulke to stay execution in this case for a few days, on the ground that he had been called to take his opinion of the Court of Exchequer as to the amount of damages awarded (£3,000). His lordship consented to do so, but remarked that in doing so he was not to be taken as expressing any opinion on the merits of the case, which was one for the jury.

RIGOROUS MEASURES AGAINST MARSHAL BAZAINE.

Since sentence was passed upon Marshal Bazaine previous measures have been adopted by the authorities to prevent his escape from the prison, and communication with persons outside has been greatly restricted. His hours for food and sleep, and finally, his meals and the time for taking exercise, are regulated by the police; and "nothing can reach the marshal—either letters, papers, or food—with-out being first submitted to the strictest examination, and signed by the gendarmes stationed in the ante-chamber. To see that the orders of the civil authorities are properly carried out, and the sentence—the number of hours of rest and sleep, and the quantity of food and air night and day—are strictly enforced, having orders to fire if any attempt were made at evasion. The time for meals has also been fixed by the authorities. At a quarter-past ten in the morning the marshal takes his breakfast, and some of the guards are told off to proceed to Versailles for his luncheon and dinner, and every dish is carefully inspected before being sent to him. On the subject of his clothing, too, great energy, Marshal Bazaine frequently writes under his banishment, and suffers from attacks of prostration." According to the report of the director-general of prisons, which was just published by the Government, at Versailles, the fort of the Ile-Sainte-Marguerite, where the marshal is to be confined, is in a proper condition to receive him, some trifling repairs and alterations being all that need be carried on after his arrival there. It is, therefore, expected that the prisoner will be despatched to his place of confinement without delay.

THE QUEEN'S LABOURERS AT OSBORNE.

The National Labourers' Union held a public meeting at Victoria Rooms, Dublin, last night, at which Mr. W. Herbert, who was announced as late a worker on her Majesty's estate at Osborne, presented a petition to the House of Commons for the assimilation of the borough and county rates, and a resolution that Sir Thomas Mitchell, "One from the Plough," the secretary on her Majesty's estate seven-and-twenty years ago, was discharged, with six others, by the steward, Mr. Macpherson, for asking for an increase of wages. Mr. Herbert said that George Mitchell, "One from the Plough," had answered questions to Mr. Herbert, of which the following, with their answers, are specimens:—"It has been reported that the Queen's labourers at Osborne have no right to demand such. Is that so?"—A. "It is no such thing. There isn't more than a quarter of an acre to some cottages. Others have not more than 12 or 14 acres. I don't think they have improved much since what it was in working early and long. What were your wages?—14s. a week, but 3s. a week was deducted for house rent, so that we only got 12s. a week to keep wife and family. If you had been a tenant you would have got for working overtime at harvest and hayingmaking, but that didn't come altogether to more than 10s. or 12s. for the whole time. Had you any perquisites—dolls—a pair of boots occasioned me a loss, and I asked for my kit and wardrobe, were taken ill, which became of my?—We might have an allowance for a week or two, but then it was dropped. When you asked for this money, how did you meet it?—The second factor seren of new work's notice leave, and to give up our cottages in five weeks. Where the cottages went for others?—I don't know out of what. I saw those who I was turned out of in empty houses had been out of their homes for four or five years. He had to be turned out too, and was driven into the town, though he is over eighty years old, and had worked something like thirty years on the estate. No right to get paid for 2s. a week over wage! We wish to state the case fairly.—I believe your father has an allowance from the Queen?—Yes, but after we asked for the rise, Mr. Macpherson stopped us further in right of pension, and tried to get it stopped; but Sir Thomas Biddiph wouldn't listen to it. I don't believe the matter has been laid properly before the Queen's agent, and I am afraid the estate have nothing to say against her. It's the steward who has done it. He was offended because we went straight to the mistress instead of going to him. That's the secret." Mr. G. O'Brien, the County District secretary to the union, proposed that a petition be sent to the Queen, asking her Majesty to consider the case of the labourers whom her steward had discharged, because they had no right to pensions received by the estate.

This proposition was unanimously carried. See Mill Gazette.

IMPERIAL QUARTO.
ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY, WITH THE
PUNTI AND MANDARIN
PRONUNCIATION.
An ANGLICAN DICTIONARY, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

FOR completeness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been imported to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, geography and science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is thoroughly illustrated and explained, forming exactly the desiderata of a most instructive manual for the Chinese and Panti pronounciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on to best principle hitherto attained. The copyright belongs to the printer, as applicant to publish the Chinese and English type correspondence of the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not formerly obtained, and dispensing with those large margins and waste spaces which, in the corrosive form characterized Chinese publications, have rendered them so costly and unprofitable.
To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration: The dictionary contains more than 100,000 Chinese characters, and Michener's English work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 800,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammar, and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and combinations of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples no work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto published.

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that 3 reference to its pages enables a person who understands Chinese to "communicate" effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves if acquainted with their own language, which very few indeed are. Again, it affords the grammar, and other elementary parts, in English and interested in it cannot but be of invaluable occasionally.
It comprises upwards of two thousand large carte pages.
